

Please read the following information and contact an Arsenal Consulting representative if you do not understand any of it and would like further clarification.

Each company is different and must create a quality assurance program that is unique to their own product and requirements. The information included in this document package is intended to be used as a format and structure for creation of your company's own specific quality assurance program and for the user to provide additional policies, procedures, and documents as appropriate to the company. These documents are not suitable for use until properly customized to your company's requirements and those agreed to by contract.

Regulatory compliance within the nuclear industry is a complicated and detailed subject. These template documents are not intended to be a substitute for management knowledge and expertise in this field.

Arsenal Consulting, Inc. makes no warranty or guarantee for the information included in these documents. Arsenal Consulting, Inc. is not responsible for any harm coming from the use of these documents either directly or indirectly. The use of these documents are solely at the discretion of the purchaser.

The user is responsible for obtaining legal copies of any documents such as standards or codes needed to comply with copyright restrictions. These documents are in an open format for your use and may be used shared within the company purchasing these documents. Distribution to outside organizations or resell of these documents is prohibited.